

Ali Sakr

New York Red Bulls

Session 041 Review

Clip-by-clip analysis across the four key phases of the session.

RATING KEY

-  Good play
-  Mixed - strengths and errors
-  Errors / missed opportunity

CONTENTS

- 01 Final Third
Crossing | Finishing | Penetration 8 plays
- 02 Attacking Transition
Runs in behind | Carrying | Ball security 7 plays
- 03 Build-Up
Between the lines | Third man | Wide channels 4 plays
- 04 Defensive Phase
Counter-press | Space protection | 1v1 6 plays

Final Third

Attacking the last line: 1v1s, crossing, finishing and penetration.

Play 1 Execution: poor first-time cross.

Play 2 Left-foot control, good 1v1; poor finishing execution.

Play 3 Left-foot control, still clears the situation. Poor finish - the far side offered stronger options.

Play 4 Space to drive and a teammate in a potential overload. Right-foot control sets up a good 1v1.

Play 5 Ball too far from the body; the left back is ball-watching - good chance to run in behind.

Play 6 Again too far from the left back - no option to penetrate.

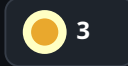

Play 7 Poor control, but escapes the press. Could have carried further, although the pass was not a bad decision.

Play 8 Play through the inside channel - keep the ball closer to the foot.

Attacking Transition

Decisions and ball security in the moments right after winning possession.

Play 1

Chance to run into the space in behind the left back.

Play 2

Why not switch the play wide? A numerical advantage was available.

Play 3

Left-foot control.

Play 4

Could carry longer to commit the defender and delay, allowing a teammate to run in behind.

Play 5

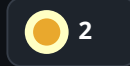

Good tackle; carrying the ball too far from the foot invited the challenge.

Play 6 & 7

More examples of teammates carrying the ball away from the foot and being dispossessed.

Build-Up

Second-phase build-up - progressing the ball into the final third.

Play 1

Recognise the teammate already in space; the left back is ball-watching - chance to penetrate.

Play 2

Play to feet? Identify the teammate with the advantage and use it to create an outside-to-inside option - but the space between the lines was not occupied.

Play 3

Dropping deep to build. Chance to break in between the lines or to set up a third-man combination - offered neither.

Play 4

Teammate with a potential advantage out wide. Why not use the wide channel?

Defensive Phase

Counter-pressing, pressing decisions and 1v1 defending.

Play 1 Aggressive press to block the pass - beaten on the dribble.

Play 2 Poor counter-press after the turnover - beaten on the dribble.

Play 3 Protect the space instead of over-committing onto the opponent's body. Good effort to stay in the play until the end.

Play 4 Good counter-press - aggressive block of the passing lane.

Play 5 Good counter-press - delays and disrupts the opponent's transition.

Play 6 Good effort - chases and presses the opponent, forcing the mistake.